

PETUNIA SURFINIA

Surfinia Hot Red

Surfinia Vanilla

Surfinia Sweet Pink

Surfinia have the longest trailing stems of any petunias, reaching up to 90cm in length. They are fantastic grown in hanging baskets, troughs and planters. The varieties we have chosen are single flowers, which means they are particularly beneficial to bees and other insects as the nectar is easy for them to access.

Simply plant them in your chosen container, and allow them to grow as they wish, and water them regularly. As a suggestion, I usually plant 3 per 12" basket as this allows them space to grow without becoming over-crowded. It is a good idea to mix in some slow release fertilizer into the compost when you plant them.

The plants will trail, but if they get too leggy, simply pinch off the bits you don't want. To create a bushy plant it is a good idea to pinch out the growing tip in the earlier part of the season as this encourages the plant to branch out more. To keep your surfinia flowering for the longest possible time, simply snap the flower head off at the base, as this will encourage the plant to grow new flowers.
